TESTING FOR HIV WILL BE MORE ACCESSIBLE THAN EVER

HIV is thoroughly controllable when diagnosed on time. However many people still identify HIV (human immunodeficiency virus) with AIDS (Acquired Immune Deficiency Syndrom) and so they often think of it as of a death sentence. In fact, AIDS is the final, most severe stage of HIV. Regular testing for HIV will help to detect and control the virus on time.

“Testing for HIV has become more accessible than ever”, mentioned Project coordinator of HIV Prevention among MSM, female CSWs and trans people project Artyom Movsesyan who took part in the workshop on HIV testing and Prevention at the National Center for AIDS Prevention. Project assistant Levon Chilingaryan states, “Since August 2017 NGNGO beneficiaries have access to NGO-based free of charge testing for HIV. This implies that the outreach workers trained on voluntary consulting and testing services will be able to provide testing services both at the house of the beneficiary and at other places where necessary conditions will be ensured such as the appropriate temperature, lighting, confidentiality etc.” You can watch the video-guide on testing here.

Th two-day workshop is also important because people directly working with the project beneficiaries and target groups, i.e. outreach workers in this case, reinforced their knowledge on HIV and AIDS, acquired relevant skills on testing for HIV among the beneficiaries. The workshop also provides the opportunity to make the HIV-related services more accessible to the beneficiaries and target groups the NGO works with.

The workshop is implemented by RA National center for AIDS prevention.

On April 12, 2019, a video was posted on the Facebook page under the name "ADEKVAD" entitled "We apologize to all gay worshipers, pro-Azerbaijani walkerasts". On the same day, hours later, the Respondent posted a video on his Facebook page entitled "Another Apology trial from Grigor Yeritsyan," which, like the previous one, did not have sufficient denial in essence. Days later, on 17.04.2019, Konstantin Ter-Nakalian again posted on his Facebook page a video titled "Many apologies, Grigor Yeritsyan ... Apologies from me personally and Artur Danielyan", with a derogatory attitude towards Grigor Yeritsyan and stating that they will continue to act like that.
